STATE MAY REST ITS CASE TODAY IN LINCOLN TRIAL

Aurora Chief Will Be First Witness for the Defense.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Geneva, Ill., Jan. 30.—The state will rest today in its prosecution of the lawyer-forist Warren J. Lincoln. The defense will open with Chief of Police Frank Michaels of Aurora, as its first witness. It was he, who first suspected and took up the hunt for Lincoln.

Defense counsel thus far have not indicated the nature of testimony they will offer. They have sought rather by questioning of state witnesses to show that it cannot be proved that Mrs. Lincoln and her brother died of gun shot wounds. The indictment charges that Lincoln killed the two by shooting. Mrs. Lincoln with a rifle, Shoup with a revolver. The indictment is based on a statement Lincoln made to a coroner's jury after he had confessed the murders.

Doctors Eugene Pritchard and E. M. Thomas of Aurora, who opened the heads in a search for bullets, admitted yesterday that there were fractures of the skulls that could have caused death. The bullets were apparently of the same caliber and wounds were in the identical place, just forward of the left ear.

The bullets which were found in the heads of Mrs. Lincoln and Shoup were identical. Carl Vogtman, an Aurora jeweler and trap shooter, said in testifying as an expert as a weigher of the missiles. "They were 22 long," he said. "The bullet I was told was taken from Mrs. Lincoln's head was in two pieces and these pieces weighed the same as the bullet taken from Shoup's head."

Dr. E. J. Still of Aurora testified that he had known Mr. and Mrs. Lincoln since they first came to Aurora, had had them at his house and they appeared a most devoted couple. He said he had seen the heads of Mrs. Lincoln and Shoup and recognized them. Dental work he had done for Mrs. Lincoln he also recognized.

CREW OF S-48, DRIVEN ASHORE, IS TAKEN OFF

Men Were Suffering Exposure and Cold When Rescued.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Portsmouth, N. H., Jan. 30.—The crew of the submarine S-48, which was driven ashore off the entrance to Portsmouth Harbor last night, was taken off by coast guardsmen at 8:30 o'clock this morning. The men were suffering from exposure and their clothing frozen. The submarine had been leaking badly coast guardsmen said.

The crews from the Wallis Sands and Wood Island coast guard stations which had striven ineffectually all night to reach the stranded vessel as it pounded on the rocks off Point Jaffrey, had better success today when the subsiding seas left the S-48 resting on a bed of sand in Little Harbor. The members of the crew were taken on a tug to Fort Stark where they were warmed and fed before being transferred to the navy yard. Three of the men were so benumbed by the cold that they had to be carried aboard the tug, but the revived quickly and after they had been at the fort for a short time all the men appeared in good condition.

The submarine has become so filled with chlorine gas that all hands were forced to go on deck some time before they were rescued, lay in Little Harbor, half on a sandy bottom and half in the channel. Naval men said they considered it unsafe to attempt to pull her into deep water in the high seas running and with the puncture in her hull. They were consulting as to the advisability of sending workmen to patch the hull before trying to float her.

GRAND JURY IS CALLED TO ACT IN WHEELER CASE

Atty. Gen. Says Montana Man Was "Involved" in Conspiracy.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Jan. 30.—The federal grand jury, before which the Department of Justice will seek a second indictment in the District of Columbia against Senator Wheeler, democrat, of Montana, who already is under indictment in his own state, was called together today.

The proceedings here against the Montana senator caused the Senate last Wednesday to refer back to the judiciary committee the nomination of Attorney General Stone to be a Supreme Court justice. The Attorney General, in subsequently appearing before the committee, made it clear that the Department of Justice regards the case under prosecution here as separate from that resulting in the Montana indictment against Senator Wheeler.

In that indictment the Montana senator is charged with illegally accepting a fee to represent a constituent in connection with oil land permits before a government department after his election to the Senate. Mr. Stone told the Senate committee that evidence in the case to be prosecuted here indicated there had been a conspiracy to defraud the government in oil and mineral lands and that "testimony could not be taken without indicating that Senator Wheeler was involved in the transaction."

As to "a conspiracy arising to commit the crime," Mr. Stone's nomination, the Senator leaders were predicting today that confirmation would be voted by the Senate next week. Some of the members who have opposed confirmation, although none indicated a change in position, appeared to agree that the fight was a losing one. The judiciary committee meets Monday and it was indicated a vote might be taken then, and that the Senate itself would be asked to take early action.

Grange Not Given Permit to Perform in New Film

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Champaign, Ill., Jan. 29.—There is absolutely no truth to the report that we have granted "Red" Grange permission to accept a movie contract and absent himself from his school work," said George Huff, director of athletics of the University of Illinois, today in commenting on the report that the All-American half back had accepted a four week's contract with a New York movie corporation at $2,000 a week. "It is unfair to Grange and to us to publish such falsehoods," he added.

Grange, when asked concerning the matter, last night, said he had received such a contract, but planned to return it unsigned.

AID TO ALASKA TO BE SENT BY U. S. AIRPLANE

Nome's Appeal Through Associated Press Brings Results.

BULLETIN.
By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Jan. 30.—Authorization for Roy S. Darling, special agent of the Department of Justice, to make an airplane flight with diphtheria anti-toxin from Fairbanks to Nome has been forwarded to Alaska.

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—The diphtheria epidemic yesterday took a serious turn and the citizens, through the local correspondent of the Associated Press, pleaded that official Washington hasten anti-toxin serum by air force to wait for dog team delivery.

"Help immediately!" "Help by airplane with anti-toxin serum," is the appeal of Nome, not for the soundboughs but especially for the children, the young Americans of tomorrow.

Don't Want Russian Aid.
"We do not want to ask Soviet Russia to send an ice breaker with anti-toxin, nor do we ask that the Shenandoah or the Los Angeles be dispatched, but please get Uncle Sam to send an airplane from Fairbanks with two red-blooded men, who have volunteered to fly to Nome in four hours time, in order to bring relief."

"There is a shipment of anti-toxin from Juneau due in Nenana February 3, which, if sent by airplane will beat the dog team by several days to Nome, which may save the lives of many."

"Everything looked favorable yesterday, but today conditions have reversed. More new cases have been reported. Dr. Welch states that all four and five-year-old anti-toxin have been used up and only one good dozen of six-year-old anti-toxin left."

"There has been about 75,000 units of old anti-toxin used which has been responsible for holding the epidemic in check to date, but now that it is used up and more cases appearing the situation becomes serious, due to the fact that if we must wait for dog team to arrive we cannot expect relief much before February 13."

"The appeal concluded with a request to the Associated Press to bring the situation to the attention of officials at Washington."

SHIPMENT FROM SEATTLE

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—While the fastest dog teams of northern Alaska were racing in relay's today over the frozen Tundra along the Yukon river with 200,000 units of anti-toxin to relieve a diphtheria epidemic in Nome, final arrangements were being made to ship 2,100,000 units of the serum from Seattle on the steamship Alameda, next Saturday. The shipment will go to Seward, transferred to the Alaska railroad, taken to Nenana where it will be placed on a dog team. Another relay race will then be run to Nome.

GENERAL STORE AT W. BROOKLYN ROBBED IN NIGHT

Loot Valued at Over $2,000 Obtained By Unknown Thieves.

(Telegraph Special Service)
West Brooklyn, Jan. 30.—The F. W. Meier general store here was burglarized some time during the night and goods valued at about $2,000 taken. Entrance was gained by using skeleton keys on the front door, from all appearances, and the robbery was not discovered until the place of business opened this morning. Deputies Ray Gulpin of Paw Paw and A. H. Hill of Lee Center were conducting an investigation today.

A sedan automobile, in which strangers were passengers, was seen on the streets last night, and it is thought that the goods were loaded in to this car and hauled away. A hurried check up on the stock this morning showed that 100 pairs of men's shoes and oxfords, 50 bolts of silk, 200 pairs of silk stockings, 75 pairs of kid gloves, 20 bolts of table linen, several bolts of dress goods, and a number of articles of jewelry were missing. No clue was left as to the direction taken by the robbers.

ACTRESS SUES MOTHER OVER HER EARNINGS

Mary Miles Minter Asks Accounting By Her Parent.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Los Angeles, Calif., Jan. 30.—Mary Miles Minter's millions, money she says she earned during a stage and screen career that began when she was a child, six years old, today formed a golden gulf across which the motion picture actress and her mother faced each other as opponents in a lawsuit.

In an action filed in superior court yesterday for an accounting of funds which she alleges her mother received for her as her guardian, Miss Minter, giving her name as Juliette Shelby, "also known as Juliette Kelly," states that her mother, Mrs. Charlotte Shelby, "also known as Pearl Miles Kelly," has repeatedly refused to make any accounting of money earned by her daughter.

The sums received by Mrs. Shelby from time to time including, according to the complaint, a total of $700,000 secured by Miss Minter under a contract with the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation during the years 1920-22. Her total earnings, since she began work as a girl of six, she is unable to estimate accurately she says, but she is confident the sum runs into seven figures.

The court is asked to order Mrs. Shelby to make an accounting at once for all money received on behalf of her daughter and all property she has purchased with that money.

Better Get Those 1925 License Plates for Car

February 1 has been set as the last day allowed for the securing of 1925 state auto license plates and all owners who have not obtained the brown and white number plates by that date will be in danger of being asked why to explain before the police magistrate.

Chief J. D. Van Biller has received word from the state department that this file must be lived up to and that no extra time will be allowed to lapse as was the case last year when many drivers failed to secure their plates until later in the year. "Checking up on those who are without numbers—is no small task and inspectors from Springfield will be here Feb. 16 and 17 to make the rounds in connection with the local police force so take warning for the 'cops' will get you if you don't watch out."

MEANS AND HIS ATTORNEY FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

Conspiracy to Bribe a Govt. Official Held Proven in Court.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
New York, Jan. 30.—Gaston B. Means, former Department of Justice agent was found guilty by a federal court jury today on charges of conspiring to bribe government officials, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $10,000 and to serve a two-year penitentiary term.

Thomas B. Feider, Means' attorney, who was convicted of a similar charge was fined $10,000. The sentences were imposed by Federal Judge Lindley after the jury had returned a sealed verdict which had found the defendants guilty, but recommended clemency. The court denied motions to set aside the verdict on the ground that it was contrary to the weight of evidence.

The verdict, returned by the first judge-picked jury to function in a federal court trial here, marks one of many high lights in the sensational career of Means.

Indicted Last March

The present case got into the courts when a federal grand jury last March indicted Means, Feider and Elmer W. Jarnecke, who had been known as secretary to Means, on the justice obstruction conspiracy charge. Officials of the Crager System Inc., and the Glass Casket Company, of Altoona, Pa., charged the trio with having obtained $65,000 from them on their representation that it would be spent in bribing high government officials to call off their prosecution on charges of having used the mails in a stock fraud conspiracy.

Seventeen of the more than fifty men involved subsequently were convicted and sentenced to penitentiary terms in Atlanta. It was after their conviction that the Crager-Glass Casket defendants complained and the indictment of the accused trio followed.

The indictment charged the defendants "conspired to represent that Feider was a secret partner in the practice of the law with the attorney general of the United States (Harry M. Daugherty), and that Means was an officer and employee of the government occupying a position of importance in the Department of Justice."

Defendants Started

With the opening of the trial January 5, Jarnecke, changed his plea to guilty and became the government's chief witness. He admitted having turned government agent and received $77 a week as salary.

The verdict was a shock to Feider, a white haired veteran attorney of 42 years experience who had confidently expected to be exonerated. Feider and Means had arrived in court about ten minutes before the verdict was read.

Means, who had appeared nervous yesterday afternoon, seemed confident this morning and was obviously startled by the verdict.

To Appeal Case

Feider said he would immediately file an appeal. He expressed confidence that the conviction would be reversed by the circuit court of appeals and declared his innocence of the charge notwithstanding the verdict of the jury.

Means had nothing to say but his counsel said an appeal would also be filed in his case. Means is already under sentence of two years and a fine of $10,000 for violation of the Volstead act, but today's sentence on motion of Special U. S. Attorney Todd is not to be concurrent with the previous one.

MORE WITNESSES TO HERRIN RIOT SOUGHT BY JURY

City Today Had Resumed Aspect of Quiet Following Funerals.

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 30.—(By the Associated Press)—Herrin today had resumed a quiet aspect and Williamson County, the scene of tragic factional strife, was preparing for another era of comparative peace, perhaps for permanent peace, following the departure of the troops which had been on guard since the killing of S. Thomas Young, Deputy Sheriff Ora Thomas and two others Saturday night.

Meanwhile members of the coroner's jury were trying to find witnesses to the shooting in a final effort to clear up the affair. The jury will meet tomorrow following today's recess in what will probably prove to be its final session.

Seek New Witnesses

The session will be occupied with connecting the odds and ends of testimony and the development of some new leads, it was announced.

The testimony of Mrs. Ora Thomas yesterday concerning the action of armed men in offering to attack Dr. J. T. Black at Herrin hospital after the shooting will be developed with new witnesses and an attempt will be made to find a man said to have told friends he saw the shot first that killed Thomas.

A report that two men were wounded in the fight was also under investigation, and if it proves true, these men may come before the jury. Unless some more definite information is obtained there appeared to be little chance that the jury could make any definite findings, except that Young was killed by Thomas.

With the recess of the jury at noon yesterday interest centered upon the funeral of Young, who was buried as a Ku Klux Klansman.

25,000 AT FUNERAL

Herrin, Ill., Jan. 29.—(Special)—Preceded by a guard of honor, consisting of 100 members of the Ku Klux Klan, fully robed, wearing closely drawn masks and bearing several large American flags, the funeral cortege of S. Glenn Young, klansman, leader, passed through the business center of Herrin this afternoon on its way to the cemetery.

Six mounted and hooded klansmen, their horses robed in white, also preceded the hearse.

The elaborate rites at the graves followed services at the Baptist church, where the body had lain in state since Sunday. Nine ministers, led by the Rev. P. R. Glorietta, pastor of the Herrin Methodist church, joined in eulogizing the slain klansman in sermon and prayer. Fully a score more clergymen, coming from various sections of the state, were about the altar.

Crowd Estimated at 25,000

When the last strains of "Somewhere a Voice is Calling" had ended the church services more than 1,000 of the estimated crowd of 25,000 which had thronged about the church and on the streets since early morning filed past the flag draped bier of the slain klansman.

Through it all a slight, pitifully drooped figure of a woman in deep mourning sat beside the coffin. She was Mrs. Maude Young, the youthful widow.

LEE COUNTY OFFICIALS IN NEW SITUATION

Guns Shown, Lookout Warns of Coming of Officers?

Ora Holderman of this city reported to the police Thursday evening that he had been held up at the point of two revolvers on Peoria avenue near Eighth street about 10 o'clock and robbed, his assailants securing one dollar in money. Holderman is said to have told a story, in which he named parties as having called him from his home last night and he went with them in an automobile. As the car neared the corner of Peoria avenue and Eighth street, two revolvers were pointed at him and he was relieved of the one dollar.

City and county authorities this morning were conducting an investigation into the case and at a late hour this afternoon, there were indications that the robbery might have been the result of the sudden disappearance of about 50 gallons of alcohol which is alleged to have been in the process of transfer on the Peoria road south of the city limits, when a call "There comes the sheriff" was given and parties interested in the change suddenly disappeared. It was reported that during the rush for the corn fields that the 50 gallons of alcohol mysteriously disappeared, before the amount for their purchase had been turned over to the contracting parties. Holderman is thought to have been mistaken by parties interested in the case and the robbery perpetrated as a means of "getting even." Names of parties interested in the case were furnished State's Attorney Mark C. Keller today.

LIFE.
Let me but live my life from year
to year
With forward face and unreluctant
soul;
Not hurrying to, nor tiring from the goal;
Not mourning for the things that disappear
In the dim past, nor holding back in fear
From what the future veils, but with a whole
And happy heart, that pays its toll
To Youth and Age, and travels on with cheer.
So let the way wind up the hill or down,
Be rough or smooth, the journey
will be joy;
Still seeking what I sought when but
a boy, Ne friendships, high adventure, and
a crown,
My heart will keep the courage of the quest,
And hope the road's last turn will be the best.

—Henry Van Dyke.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS.
Uneven Meringue.
When putting meringue on pud-

ing and pies heap it on unevenly,
as it is much more attractive this way
when delicately browned.

Use Vinegar.
Ammonia will sometimes change the color of fabric on which it has been used to remove spots. When this is the case, apply vinegar to restore it.

Making Lemon Pies.
When making lemon pies always allow the filling to become cool before you pour it into the shell that has been previously baked.

For Mayonnaise.
When making mayonnaise for fruit

salad, use pineapple juice and lemon juice instead of vinegar.

1/4 teaspoon pepper, 2 eggs, 2 tablespoons milk, 1 pint oysters, 1 1/2 cups
cream sauce.

Chop spinach in a chopping bowl to make it very fine. Beat eggs with two tablespoons of milk until very light. Add to spinach with salt, pepper and butter and mix well. Turn into a buttered ring mold and steam one hour. Turn from mold onto a hot serving dish and fill center with oysters in the cream sauce.

Wash and parboil oysters before adding to the hot sauce.

Jellied Fruit Salad.
Two tablespoons granulated gelatin, 1/2 cup lemon juice, 1 tablespoon sugar, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 1/2 cups boiling water, 1/2 cup diced apple, 1/2 cup diced pineapple, 1/2 cup diced banana, 1/2 cup diced orange, 1 cup boiled dressing, 1/2 cup finely chopped nuts, head lettuce.

Soften gelatin in one-half cup cold water. Add lemon juice, sugar, salt and pepper to boiling water and pour over softened gelatin. Stir until dissolved. Let stand until beginning to jelly. Add fruit and salad dressing and turn into a mold. Put on ice until firm and thoroughly chilled. Serve on a bed of lettuce and sprinkle with chopped nuts. Garnish with large red cherries.

Veal Pot-Pie.
Two pounds of veal cut from forequarter, 1 cup mashed potato, 2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 cup milk, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, flour to stiffen, 8 potatoes.

Cook meat in boiling water to cover until tender. Remove from bone and cut into neat dice. Strain stock and reserve. Make a dough of the mashed potatoes, butter, milk, salt, baking powder and flour to make stiff enough to roll. Pare and slice potatoes. Roll crust dough about one-half inch thick. Put a layer of the dough into a deep casserole, add meat and potatoes and season with salt and pepper. Make a deep gash in the remaining dough rolled for the cover.
Cover meat and potatoes with dough and bake slowly for 45 minutes. Pour a little stock through the gash in the top when the pie has been in the oven for 15 minutes. When crust is done, increase heat to brown quickly. Serve in the dish in which the pie was baked.

Prairieville Social
Circle Meeting

The Prairieville Social Circle held an all-day meeting Wednesday with Mrs. Alfred Strock at her home north of Sterling, with a good attendance present.

At the noon hour a picnic dinner was served, the hostess serving hot chicken as her share. The dinner was enjoyed by twenty-four members and ten guests.

In the afternoon the regular business of the meeting was transacted and afterward a social hour was enjoyed. It was decided to hold the annual midwinter picnic for the Social Circle and Community at the Prairie-ville church, Feb. 11th, which will be the regular day of the meeting.

To Restrict Out Door Advertising

Chicago.—(By the Associated Press.)
—Prizes for the most definite piece of work done in the various districts of the state to restrict the prominent use of outdoor advertising will be offered by the art department of the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs.
It was announced at the meeting of the board of directors here today.

The aim of the movement, it was explained, is to restrict the erection of billboards and other forms of outdoor advertising to commercial locations.

The art department also has arranged to conduct a buy-a-picture week from February 2 to 7. Its aim is to raise the art standards of homes throughout the state. "Good American pictures by good American artists in every American home" has been adopted as the slogan of the week designated.

Plans were presented by the music department for the entry of Illinois
children in the National Music Memory contest to be held during the biennial convention of the federation at Atlantic City in June, 1926. Mrs. Homer E. Cotton, director of music at New Trier High School, Kenilworth, Ill., devised the plan which was presented by Mrs. E. J. Murray, chairman of the music committee.

Mrs. James W. Morrison, chairman of the international relations committee, presented a report on the Gneva protocol. The purposes of the pact, she said, is "to give to European nations, to whom security is a matter of life and death, some alternative to war that will still give them protection and make keeping the peace a common enterprise."

Considerable time was given over to a discussion of the legislative program which was presented by Mrs. T. Masson, legislative chairman.

Mrs. George Thomas Palmer,
Springfield, president of the federation presided. In her opening address she pleaded for "loyalty and allegiance to the Illinois Federation."

I ask that you give the federation
an opportunity to answer your needs
before you apply to other organizations," she said. "The Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs is thirty years old. From it, indirectly, have sprung most of the other organizations. In a way it is the parent organization and I ask your generous support, financially and morally, if its plans for progress."

Women of Mooseheart
Legion in Meeting

The Women of Mooseheart Legion held their regular meeting Tuesday evening at Moose hall with a good attendance.

One candidate made application for membership. The Senior Regent appointed several committees and as-soon as the business was disposed of,
the members enjoyed a social interval,
playing 600. The hostesses, Mesdames Nan McIntyre and Hazel Kelley served refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee and everyone had a delightful evening. At the regular meeting in February the members will enjoy another social hour after the business meeting. The hostesses will be Mesdames Mary Hill, Katherine Minnehan and Margaret Pettit, and it is hoped by the Senior Regent that there will be a good attendance of the members.

MRS. MANNING TO VISIT
DAUGHTER IN SAN FRANCISCO

Mrs. Clifford Brodeur of San Francisco, who has been visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Manning of Galena avenue, left Tuesday night for her home. Mrs. Brodeur was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Manning, who will visit several months with her daughter.

On Sunday a family reunion was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F.
H. Manning prior to the departure of Mrs. Manning.

Each state will name its own time
for the celebration. The clubwomen
of many states have chosen a week
in February for this observance. The pictures to be purchased will be those
of contemporary American painters,
and will be placed in the private home
and the schoolrooms of the state.

"Good pictures are the most beautiful thing in a well-furnished room," declared Walter Murray, well known lecturer on interior decorating, of New York and Chicago, who is cooperating with the Illinois Federation of Women's Clubs to make a success of the observance. "We should not listen to faddists who advocate sweeping pictures off the walls, or who say that pictures are not in style. How could anything truly artistic and beautiful ever be out of style?"

"Pictures that are beautiful in themselves and that harmonize with the furnishings of the room are like veritable jewels. They bring color, interest and atmosphere of culture into the home."

"Excellent color reproductions are obtainable at small cost, and are acknowledged by artists to have the color, beauty, composition and fine quality of the originals. The delicately harmonizing frames of today have done much to increase the vogue for pictures, by adding greatly to their beauty."

SPANISH NOTE
TO THIS

present to enjoy the happy day were
Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Harden and son, Vernon, of Nelson township; Mr. and Mrs. William Bollman and son, Wilbur, of Rock Falls; Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Wilson and son Henry of this city.

Beautiful Pictures
Always in Good Taste

A step of progress in the cultural standards of the American home will be made when thousands of clubwomen
all over the country celebrate
"Buy a Picture Week," sponsored by the General Federation of Women's Clubs.

Each state will name its own time
for the celebration. The clubwomen
of many states have chosen a week
in February for this observance. The
pictures to be purchased will be those
of contemporary American painters,
and will be placed in the private home

FARMS.

This year 142 farms have been sold in the United States for every 100 in 1923. So reports National Association of Real Estate Boards. A lot of owners had to sell. Also, for every seller there's a buyer, so it doesn't reflect a tendency away from the soil that supplies our crops.

The price of acres sold this year is 65 per cent higher, on the average, than in 1923.
Another period of speculation in farm land values is developing. The wise will recall the bitter lesson of the past.

FYING.

For $40 an airplane will carry you from London to Zurich, Switzerland, a distance of 650 miles. That is about 16 miles for $1, a very low rate considering the time saved.

Europe is leaving us far behind in development of commercial aviation, despite the fact that Americans invented the airplane.

CHEAP.

Airplane lines, London to Paris, carry 30 pounds of baggage free for each passenger.
For excess weights the charge is 10 to 20
cents a pound.

The airplane, at the present stage of its development, looks as if it will chiefly carry passengers, mail and urgent express. Flying freight trains are not impossible. It'll be a matter of cost. Right now the big element of costs is the rapidity with which airplane engines become worn out.

EXTREMES.

Suing for divorce, a Wisconsin man admits that his wife is the best housekeeper in town.
But he says "this passion for cleanliness has so obsessed her that it has become paramount
in her mind, causing her to forget and neglect everything else in life, even the plaintiff."

Evil very frequently is good carried to extremes. Another example is stinginess, the extreme of thrift. Happiness and good citizenship are in a happy medium.

IMPROVIDENT.

Sections where timber once stood must now pay high freight rates to get lumber from sections where timber still stands.

So points out the American Tree Association.

As a result of someone's shortsightedness,
the states forced to pay this cost are burdened with hundreds of thousands of acres fitted for nothing else save tree growth. Uncle Sam has 81 million acres of such idle land.

Our forests are being depleted at a rate
four times faster than their growth.

Greedy such as this is often the forerunner of famine.

A SURE SIGN.

The National Cash Register Company reports shipping 146,000 registers during 1924
—a record.

That's a sign of prosperity of the little fellow as well as the big one. The small struggling business uses the old fashioned till. One of the first things a small merchant invests
in, when prosperity permits it, is a cash register.

BRAINS.

Half of our population are morons—some 50 millions of them, and an additional 30 millions have intelligence no higher than a normal child of 12 years. So assert experts, quoted in the Illinois Medical Journal.

It is a sorry picture. And it is a false one.
The standard of intelligence of the common people is several times as high as some of the "experts" believe. Any one who has mixed with the public knows this is true. Trouble is that intelligence tests usually grade people according to ability to think fast rather than soundly. Intelligence is more than quick wits.

WHITE COLLAR.

We've heard a lot about the high hats of Europe becoming waitresses, valets and dressmakers.

Many prefer a white collar job, one gleams
from a circular issued by a British publishing house. It offers books written by the Queen of Rumania, Lloyd George, Marquess Curzon, Ramsey MacDonald and others.

We in America should be thankful that our ex-chiefs of police and rum queens do not bombard us with literary work.

CAMPAIGNS.

The campaign by railroads, begun June 1,
to reduce grade crossing accidents has resulted in a considerable saving of lives. This according to H. A. Rowe of the American Railway Association.

Safety is a matter of education more than anything else. It is also a matter of dollars to railroads and other big interests.

Which is one reason why private industry
is spending good money on anti-accident schooling.

Ibanez can't use any of his Four Horsemen
to take him back to Spain. He would be imprisoned on arrival for speaking disparagingly of the Spanish king.

Now that all the children's flimsy toys have been broken, family life gets back to normality, while the kids look forward to next Christmas.

Aaron Sapiro, counsel for farmers' organizations, is preparing to sue Henry Ford for a million dollars for libel. Why doesn't he make the sum big enough for Henry to notice.

To an honest man there are few pleasures
so great as paying an honest debt.

Nearly everybody expects to make money in 1925. And so nearly everybody will.

Just to show that Europe's getting back to normal, there's a crisis in Albania.

What's all this about being an automobile?" asked the Queen.

"Have you heard any more wishes lately?" the Fairy Queen asked the Twins.
"Yes," said Napey. "We heard a horse wish that he was an automobile."
"The ideal," said the Fairy Queen. "As though a horse wasn't ever so much nicer. Where does this horse live?"
"He belongs to Mr. O'Neil and his name is Frank. He's very fast—he's a race horse."
"A very dangerous person to be an automobile," said the Fairy Queen, shaking her head. "But come along. We'll hunt him up and see what we can do."
Two Spot, the big blue velvet but-terfly, flew off with the three of them to the place where Frank was. He was out in a field eating grass.
"What's all this about being an automobile?" asked the Queen.
"What?" said the Fairy Queen.
"Yes," said Nick. "Didn't you say you wanted to be one? I heard you."
"Sure," said the horse. "Every horse wishes that, especially a race horse. How do you suppose I feel when I'm out on the road to let every-thing pass me. They go by—zip—zip—zing, like bullets out of a gun. It's most mortifying."
"No doubt," said the Fairy Queen. "But most dangerous, too. If you feel that way now—you'd still feel that way if you were changed into an automobile. You would still want to race everything on the road."
"No—honest—cross my heart, I wouldn't," whined the horse.
"Then you may have your wish," said the Fairy Queen, and waving her wand a remarkable thing took place.
The black horse was nowhere to be seen. Instead, a fine new black automobile was standing where the horse had been, right beside the fence.
With a honk, honk that sounded something like a whinny, it rolled out of the gate onto the road.
Mr. O'Neil came out and seemed surprised.
"It's funny that the man who brought my new automobile didn't tell me it was here," he said, getting in and starting the engine.
If he had turned his head he would have seen an enormous blue butterfly with three people riding him—disappear over the tree tops.
The engine of the automobile made a funny noise. It sounded like jiggle-jiggle-jiggle-jiggle! but really it was merrier to itself. "I'll have to re-member—I'll have to remember—no racing! I promised! Jiggle-jiggle!"
Mr. O'Neil released the brake and let out the clutch and away went the new automobile like a bird over the smooth road.
"It's risky business to turn a race horse into an automobile," the Fairy Queen was saying to the Twins. "Let's stop here and see what hap-pens."

BY CHESTER H. ROWELL

Some people will do almost any-thing for "front." We have always had those who wore better clothes and lived in better houses than they could afford, not for luxury or ex-travagance, but as a business invest-ment. They thought they could get ahead faster by pretending to have got ahead already. Now, since the income tax returns are public, a new variety is reported—the voluntary tax boosters, who pay more than their due to get the reputation of large incomes. "This a strange game, this bluff—and the bluffiest part of it is bluffing yourself into thinking you are bluffing others."

Decency of speech is growing al-most respectable. Just as "damn" was becoming ladylike, anything much worse ceases to be gentlemanly. When the great Holy Name pa-rades were held last spring, they ex-hibited to the American people hun-dreds of thousands of members of a society opposed to profanity and ob-scenity and devoted to purity of speech and conduct. They were a manly-looking lot, too—not a smir-ling sissy or a dour puritan among them.

Now an international anti-blas-phemy and anti-obscenity conference is being called, and the king of Eng-land sends his ambassador to notify the Italian government of his hearty approval. If this keeps on, even so-briety may become fashionable.

CHINA'S WRITTEN LANGUAGE

New China is trying to remove the barrier between its people and the sources of knowledge by adopting a new alphabet, which will make it al-most as easy for a Chinese child to read as it now is for an American or European child.

The trouble is that, in thus remov-ing one language barrier, the Chinese will be setting up another. The one bond of unity of all China has been the written language.

The Chinese provinces and dis-tricts all speak different languages. If the written language, in China, were what it is in our languages—merely a way of writing down the spoken language—there would be no common means of communication.

Ass'n. to Study Goitre Meets in Bloomington

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 29.—After a first day of operative clinics, the American Association for the Study of Goitre entered today upon two sessions of diagnostic clinics followed by discussions this afternoon which were expected to epitomize the progress made in the year since the first meeting of this association. Two hundred physicians from the four corners of the country, sit at a banquet this evening at which Dr. Wm. A. Pusey, Chicago, president of the American Medical Association, will speak. Wheat Suffered Setback on Basis Canada Report

Chicago, Jan. 29.—Reports current here that the Canadian government might take a hand against unduly high prices for wheat, did a good deal today to bring about a sharp setback in wheat values here. The reports in question were emphasized by a sudden break of 10 cents a bushel in the market at Winnipeg.

In Chicago the excited buying which yesterday reached the unpre-cedented total of 111,827,000 bushels, was again strongly in evidence today and declines in price here were held only about 4 cents, despite the big fall at Winnipeg. Approaching the end of the day, the price for May here was $2.01 a bushel as against 2.04 1/2 @ 2.05 at yesterday's finish.

THIRTY-THIRD INSTALLMENT

In publicity methods Admah lifted the P. & T. from the Benjamin Harrison period to the Rooseveltian. A wild-eyed, black haired young man named Bentley had once advertised the Candy Holtz system, and on him was conferred the title of General Publicity Director with instructions to introduce confectionery methods into the farm implement business. Mr. Canfield, who later the shadow of Admah Holtz, got to calling the man General Bentley; but Bentley was a good investment. Under his guidance the dull catalogues became picture books. He seduced the farmer with charming art calendars. Admah Muller raked the hay on one of the Colish hayrakes; Little Buttercup offered luncheon to a handsome rustic on a Virginia Motor Harrow.

Mr. Canfield, a methodical, cheese-paring gentleman of the old style, tickened at the sight of good money going after him. But it was only upon rare anniversaries when the toddy had gone to his head that he opened his mind to Bentley. Then in a corner he would mention "Salesmanship as a thing of the past; 'What we need now, sub, is a band of jugglers. It comes high, sub, but the farmer must have his Borsan holiday." He hated farmers.

Subsequent prosperity should have changed Mr. Canfield's mind, but he died dead. He had grown up in the P. & T. and worshipped the Peake money as his cornerstone. In terms of plain cash Admah's modernistic theories of advertising and salesmanship involved expenditures which were more than offset by economies in other directions. Although automatic hamsters in the shops were still beating steel with the rage of Vulcan, the force had been cut down to a skeleton; several more or less honorary officers had also been dispensed with. Could Admah have included Mr. Canfield in his program of retrenchment he would have done so without the slightest regret. But Mr. Canfield was a substantial stockholder and in his limited way a very useful officer.

Luck turned in the winter of 1921. How much modern views on salesmanship and advertising had to do with the case it is hard to say. Agriculture was coming to life again, taking renewed interest in neglected soil. Business revived almost overnight; tons and tons of implements which had been stored away in the great stockrooms began pouring into box-cars in their progress toward the land of wheat and corn and sugar-cane. P. & T. stocks, which had been sinking at nine, jumped to eighteen.

CHAPTER 33

During those laborious months Admah's active outer mind could have given little thought to Flora Lee Peake or her less thoughtful sister. His days were long and hard, and if there was sufficient energy left for the evening he seldom lacked amusement. Col. Atterbury had seen to it that his protégé made an appearance socially. Admah was elected to the Pickwick Club—an undreamed of attainment. He never got quite used to the place; his shoes seemed to squeak on a deep, formal carpet. But he did it there frequently and played pool sometimes with Val Peabody, who had once bowled at Walter's and, like Admah, had risen to power. Mrs. Atterbury had asked him to several dinner parties. Every Tuesday night he took Miss Hortense de Long to the theater and might have weakened into marrying her had she not announced her engagement to a hotel man from the East.

So a winter of exciting days and dull nights passed into the brightness of an April dividend when the Holtz success became established in the town which had nursed him roughly like a wolf-mother. He spent many Saturday nights with Uncle Lade and Aunt Brownie. When the Captain got his first check from the P. & T. investment he mailed it to his son in Chicago. Bert, it would appear, had failed in the button business. Old Lade sent away the money with a roar of exultation; it was as if he had won a bet.

"That's what you get for marryin'," he explained, maiming Brownie with one of his frequent embraces. "Love, courtship, marriage, and then you begin to increase and multiply. Sometimes it's twins. You're blessed with children who love you up to the age of reason. When they begin to think for themselves, of course it's hard for both parties."

"Don't mind him, Admah," cautioned Aunt Brownie.

"Well, why don't he get married and end it all?" asked Uncle Lade. That night Admah went home wondering. When the Spring racing season opened at Bradbury Downs the Atterburys gave a Derby Day breakfast in their fine old house whose French windows opened on low verandahs, overlooking acres of wooded lawn. The place was of the generous antebellum type, built under the influence of Louis Philippe. Here the Atterburys had given Derby Day breakfasts for fifty years.

Admah Holtz was specially favored by being asked. Attired in a new pinstriped suit, which Monty Fernback's salesman had coaxed him into, Admah came at noon to the big rambling house and found the Atterburys entertaining on the lavish scale by which, in days of old, they had rivalled even the Peakes. A great number of little tables had been brought in; a huge sideboard, ornate with Delft's Landing hams, chatting dishes, joints on silver platters, steaming coffee urns, gave the effect of an old South as we have been taught to think of it. A long serving table, adorned with two gigantic bowls and innumerable glasses, stood conspicuous; it was attended by a little negro whose white gloves and brass-buttoned liver gave him the look of a performing chimpanzee.

Jimmy Wilder managed to get two drinks in the time it took Admah to find the refreshment table. Holtz, who numbered Wilder among his acquaintances, knew him for a brilliantly endowed newspaper man on the down grade. Like many another his thirst had increased with Prohibition. His recent history had been one of pleasant, gradual demotions until in 1922 he had descended from a managing editor's desk to a precarious position, euphemistically called Special Writer. This, he explained, seldom interfered with his drinking.

"Good maw'nin', Mistah Holtz," cried Jimmy. "You're just in time to keep me by a counterpane."

Admah glanced into one of the large bowls; a symmetrical iceberg floated in an amber sea of something.

"Punch?" he asked. He didn't care for punch.

"Not so much punch as kick," replied Jimmy. Then to the little negro with the white gloves, "Absolom, introduce Mistah Holtz to the liquor, and make it two."

Absolom ladled two glasses. Admah took his with a gulp. His smile broadened. It was a dry Martini cocktail.

"Since Derby Day's gone dry the Colonel's taken to mixin' 'em in a bowl," explained Jimmy. "Absolom, this reminds me strongly of another." He raised his glass and heartily toasted St. Andrew of Minnesota.

Unused to drinking so early in the day, Admah was immediately and unpleasantly affected. Mrs. Atterbury, pledged to take him under her wing, led him from group to group. She showed pride in him as though he had been her son; and he reflected her pride. He carried with him an aura of success, his beamed with good fellowship. The Saturdays weren't so bad, after all. The young bloods shook him by the hand, invited him to drink, pretty young matrons rolled their eyes flirtatiously when he came the way he found himself talking vivaciously, laughing a little too loud.

Mrs. Atterbury found him a place at a table for four. The others were Mrs. Ballinger, who had been Miss Hebe Savage before her recent marriage to the son of a rich distiller, Jimmy Wilder, now reduced to a pleasant calm; and Mrs. Eustone, who had a candid census been taken of local society, should have given her occupation as that of official village gossip.

All the world around this busy little mind was one involved and naughty romance. While the ham and chicken disappeared from Spode plates she regaled the company with an account of somebody who had been followed to St. Louis by his wife and a detective. The names were all a jumble to Admah Holtz. Socially inexperienced though he was, he wondered just what Mrs. Eustone would be saying about him. Then out of the mess of words a name came popping like a pebble out of a shaken bag. Margaret Peake.

"Of course she can't help feeling bitter. But the Peakes had it comin' to them, if ever a family had. I hear she's in poor health, workin' in some little millinery shop."

"You've heard wrong, Miss Constance," Jimmy Wilder's eyes were like two live coals. "Miss Margaret is doin' a column on our woman's page. She's doin' right well, thank you."

"She certainly is," chimed little Mrs. Ballinger. "Peg isn't the kind that asks odds of anybody."

"Oh, then I was wrong," exclaimed Mrs. Eustone, backing water furiously after the manner of her kind. "But Flora Lee—"

Flora Lee's case rested for the time being because chairs were being pushed back from the tables and Colonel Atterbury's guests were hurrying toward their cars in order to be at the Downs for the famous fourth event. Admah drove to the track wondering about Flora Lee and Margaret Peake. Since his purchase of the bedroom furniture he had scarcely heard their names. Margaret had thanked him in a stiff, perfunctory letter—she had preferred to mention the furniture as a "loan." Clumsy and incoherent, Admah had sensitive as a debutante. He knew that he had offended Margaret by his late left-handed gesture. What had happened to her since? What was the bitterness to which the chattering Mrs. Eustone had referred? And what was the peculiar case of Flora Lee.

The third race impended. A band was braying out one of those exciting trombone rhapsodies peculiar to turf and circus ring. The picture was done badly in three sporting colors; green grass, brown track, red coats. The clerk of the scales, having weighed in several eminent jockeys, was just leaving the paddock for the judge's stand; around the two dollar betting machines a mob-scene was being enacted to the small concern of the sellers, who automatically exchanged tickets for currency in the long, neat money boxes. The track-followers were a strange collection of scraps, suggestive of queer iron-rillings picked from the dust by a magnet. Chinese, Indians and Mexicans, gathered in at Juarez or heaven knows where, mixed with the crowd and placed bets at the windows. Painted ladies, calculating and cool as their profession demanded, visited the paddock before taking the chances of speculation. People ordered near-beer at a sloppy bar, and fortified their irises with dribbles out of pocket flasks. A boy was bawling, "Gieha fialsh progins!"

Admah, bored with the exclusive company in Colonel Atterbury's box, looked for Mrs. Ballinger on the clubhouse lawn. By then the red-coated leader on his calico horse was marshalling his parti-colored cavalcade up to the starting post. In the enclosure fashionably gowned ladies leaned against the rail; their pretty faces turned provocatively and they laughed the sweet, leisurely laugh of the South. Racing music seemed to infect the human thoroughbreds as wildly as it did his galloping, the horse. Carnival was in the air.

"I hope you've had time to place your bets," it was the pleasant Mrs. Ballinger who spoke.

Admah moved over to where she stood; just then the barricade went up and ordinary words were drowned in the rough, deep cheer. The deer-legged animals, all bunched together, scrambled to the first turn, then began to string out. Lifetime, his slender ankles wrapp'd in red, his scrawny body contorted, held the lead to the second turn where he fell into a pocket and never got out at the finish. With no attempt at ostentation Admah tore up his tickets. Mrs. Ballinger, who had met more friends, left him quite neglected on the lawn.

"Aw, Mr. Holtz!"

At the first syllable he knew that it was Flora Lee. His heart stopped beating as he looked up to see her standing in her caress. It was unexpected and enchanting as her visitations had always been. Attempting to offer his hand, he lifted his hat, manage his program, he made a mess of all three.

"How-de-do, Mrs. Miss—"

"I'm the Marquessa San Pilar," she told him sweetly, persisting in the name she still waved in society's face.

Bad Luck and the Devil Pursued Him

"I don't think any one has had more bad luck and sickness than I have. In 1905 I had two ribs, an arm and collar bone broken in a railroad accident. Then I had pneumonia. After recovering I crossed a pasture when a bull chased me, tossed me over the fence and broke my right leg. In 1910 I had typhoid fever; since then severe stomach and liver trouble, which no medicine or doctor touched until two years ago I got a bottle of Mayr's Wonderful Remedy, which proved the first ray of light in thirteen years." RADIO EMBARKS ON PROGRAM OF MUSIC EDUCATION

Most Gigantic Music Memory Contest is Announced Today.

The greatest single step in the campaign for the advancement of musical education in the United States is announced in the completion of arrangements between the Brunswick-Balke-Comander Company, the Radio Corporation of America, and the General Electric Company. Radio broadcasting is to serve as the medium for the dissemination of the most gigantic Music Memory Contest ever attempted.

Three of the most powerful broadcasting stations in the country will be linked together for one hour every Tuesday evening commencing on February 3rd for the transmission of the Brunswick Contest programs. Station WJZ, New York City, station WGY, Schenectady, and station WIP, Washington, have been selected for the simultaneous broadcasts. The combined range of the three stations covers every state in the Union, a considerable portion of Canada and Mexico.

The Music Memory Contest is designed to further an understanding of and love for good music, adequately interpreted, throughout the entire United States. The principle has the hearty endorsement of the National Federation of Music Clubs, the National Bureau for the Advancement of Music, and thousands of individual musical clubs in the United States and Canada.

Leading figures of the musical world, including Metropolitan Opera stars and internationally famous concert artists, will be heard over the radio in programs comprising the most famous of compositions. Neither the names of the artists nor of the numbers rendered will be announced to the listening public, cash awards totalling five thousand dollars a month being presented to the listeners guessing the largest numbers of compositions and artists correctly. Contestants will also be required to write a hundred-word essay on a subject to be announced each month.

The contest will be conducted on a monthly basis, a new series of selections and artists being scheduled at the end of every four weeks. Contest programs during February will be broadcast on the 3d, 10th, 17th and 24th of the month. It is planned to continue the contests.

The contest programs will be broadcast directly from the Brunswick Recording Laboratories, New York City. Direct wire connections between the laboratories and the studio of station WJZ will carry the program to that station, where it will be sent over the wire-lines to the Schenectady and Washington stations at the same time it is radiated from the WJZ antenna.

Provision will be made to enable the public to obtain in advance a complete list of the compositions from which selections will be made, and also of the famous Brunswick artists and organizations eligible to participate in the contest programs.

BUILDING A TOOTH

Good teeth are built out of vital foods. Building a tooth is not the simple process it seems. Nature regards it so important that she takes a long time to perfect one.

Scott's Emulsion

supplies elements needful to aid normal growth and construct sound bones and strong teeth.

A food- tonic of rare value, Scott's Emulsion gives the best results when taken regularly after meals. Try it.

4,844 FARM BOYS OF STATE NOW IN STATE CLUB WORK

Seventy-eight Counties Represented in This Progressive Work.

Urbana, Jan. 30—A total of 4,844 Illinois farm children between the ages of 10 and 20 years were enrolled in boy's club work in 78 different counties of the state during the past year, according to the annual report of E. I. Pitchard, boys' club work specialist of the Illinois Agriculture College. Of this number 3,372 carried their project through to the end and submitted a final report on what they accomplished during the year.

Each of the numbers carried on a definite project under direction of the county farm adviser and the extension service of the agricultural college and in this way the youngsters received training and instruction in a wide variety of farm enterprises, the report declared. The pig project proved to be most popular, a total of 1,634 members having worked on it. Of this number 1,195 completed the project.

DIXONSOUTH CENTRALS
DEFEAT SMITHS
IN CLOSE GAMEDecision Gained By a Single Point at Y
Thursday Eve.

(By Murphy.)

The best, fastest and closest game so far in the tournament was the unanimous opinion of all the spectators and rooters who saw the South Central grade school basketball team defeat the E. C. Smiths by one point, 17-16, in the Grade School basketball tournament at the Y Thursday afternoon. With the Centrals the favorites before the game and outweighing and out sizing the Smiths the fans predicted a large score and an uneven contest. But with it first whistle it was evident that a real contest was being staged as the Smiths tore into the game played all around their larger opponents, the first half closing in their favor. The second half was nearly a repetition of the first but the South Central gradually closed the gap in the score and was lucky enough to have a one point lead when the final whistle sounded.

Italian Walker Hopes to Avenge His Defeat

New York, Jan. 30.—(By The Associated Press)—Pavlo Nurmi races tonight in the annual meet of the Morningside Athletic Club at the 102nd Engineers Armory where he appeared in the Fordham games on the third and last night of his record breaking journey from New York to Chicago and return. He hopes to set a new record for one and one eighth miles in this run.

Perhaps greater interest however, will attach to the second appearance of Ugo Frigerio of Italy, champion walker of the Olympics, against Willie Plant of the United States, who defeated him on Wednesday. Track followers assert the Italian has failed to reach his best condition, having suffered from sea sickness on his recent voyage and feel that he is now in much better form.

Frigerio must obtain permission from the Italian amateur authorities to appear in this meet. It is believed here that the American request will be granted today. The distance will be 4,000 meters.

Major League Scouts
Adopt Different Methods
in Looking Over Highly Touted Rookies.

BY BILLY EVANS

Major league scouts employ diverse ways and means to determine the possibilities of some highly touted minor league recruit.

Of course, a majority of the sleuths watch the player from the grandstand and size him up by his actual performance on the field. Others try for closer contact.

Harry Howell, famous spitball pitcher of other days, later a baseball scout, donned a uniform and pitched against the player in batting practice, if ability to hit was the doubtful issue.

Charley Farrell, famous as a catcher 30 years back, now scouting for the Boston Braves, always formed his opinion of a rookie pitcher by having the pitcher warm up with him for several days.

However, it strikes me that Joe Cantillon, while manager of the Washington club, pulled the most unique stunt I ever heard of relative to determining the value of a bugh league phenom. Of course, there was a bit of jest in Joe's reasoning.

Billie Pickering, an outfielder of the Washington club, was out of the game with a bad leg. Cantillon had received a tip about a southpaw pitcher on a team about 100 miles distant from Washington.

Rather peeved that Pickering was out of the game, because his batting was needed, Cantillon, after delegating him to look over the player, called him back for final instructions.

It so happens Pickering was a left handed hitter. He could murder right handed pitching but the porters made him plenty of trouble.

"You had better take your hat along with you," said Cantillon to Pickering.

"Why the hat?" asked the player.
"Just this, I want you to bat against the pitcher I am having you look over. If you make so much as even a foul in your first dozen tries, leave him there."

And with that, Cantillon walked away.

Worms or thrift?
ARE YOUR shoats putting on their pound or more each day? Or are they wormy?
Here's how you can tell:
Get a pail of
Dr. Hess Stock Tonic
Start in to give double the regularly prescribed dose for a week or ten days, until the bowels move freely (physic).
Make sure that each hog gets its share. Mix it with the feed, or swirl, or drinking water. That will bring the worms.
Then give the Tonic regularly as directed—two tablespoonfuls to every 500 pounds weight twice a day. This will tone up your herd and put them in a fine, thriving condition.
Costs Little to Use
The price of one pound of pork pays a shoat's Tonic bill for thirty days.
25-lb. pail, $2.25; 100-lb. drum, $8.00
(Except in the far West, South and Canada.)
